ACT II

Scene 1

(Ein Zimmer nicht ohne Komfort eingerichtet. Man sieht, es ist bewohnt. Überall sind Kleinigkeiten verstreut. Bücher. Aus den Fenstern die Aussicht auf Köln mit dem umriss des noch nicht vollendeten Domes. Der Jag geht zur Neige. Renata sitzt allein über einem Folianten in ledernem Einband.)

(KÖLN. A ROOM. It is furnished with some idea of comfort, and one can see it has been lived in. Books and other small objects are scattered round. From the window one can see the city and its unfinished cathedral. Renata is discovered alone, poring over the pages of an enormous leather-bound volume.)

Ruprecht, durch die Antwort Renatas niedergebeugt, setzt sich auf die Bank und bleibt regungslos. Renata holt ein Bündel Kräuter hervor, das ihr die Wahrsagerin gegeben, dann einige Pulver und Gräser. Ein Pulver zündet sie an, es brennt mit gleichmässiger farbiger Flamme. Das andere beginnt sie zu einer Salbe zu reiben, von Zeit zu Zeit aufmerksam in einem Buch nachschlagend. Es wird Abend.

Crushed by Renata's reply, Ruprecht sinks down on the bench and remains motionless. Renata now produces the bunch of roots which the fortune-teller had given her and also various powders. She sets light to one of the powders, and it flares up in a bright flame. The rest she makes into a paste, from time to time consulting one of the books. Dusk falls.

(Die Dekoration ist ungewiss, etwas phantastisch. Auf einer Erhöhung Agrippa von Nettesheim im Mantel und himbeerfarbenen kappchen, umgeben von drei schwarzen, zottigen Hunden. Agrippa gegenüber, niedriger als er, Ruprecht in vorgebeugter Haltung. Rings umher dicke Bücher, Follanten, alchimistische Instrumente, zwei ausgestopfte Vögel. Rechts hoch oben stehen 3 menschliche Skelette; sie sind für Agrippa sichtbar, für Ruprecht nicht.)

(A vague, rather fantastic interior. In a prominent position, AGRIPPA OF NETTESHEIM, wearing a cloak and crimson cap. Three enormous black dogs are at his feet. Facing him, downstage, RUPRECHT, his body tense, as if straining towards the Magus in passionate enquiry. All around are volumes, bound in leather and vellum, retorts and other alchemical instruments, and two stuffed birds. High up, visible to Agrippa, but not to Ruprecht, are three human skeletons.)

(Vorhang. Ein steiles Ufer zum Rhein hinunter. Der Zweikampf ist eben beendet. Ruprecht liegt verwundet, bewusstlos, den Degen in der Hand. Über ihn beugt sich besorgt Mathias. In der Ferne sieht man als Silhouetten die Gesalten Heinrichs und seines Sekundanten, in Mäntel gehüllt. Von der anderen Seite die halbversteckte Renata. Ihr Anlitz ist gespannt nach vorn gerichtet, sie lässt den Blick nicht vom Ruprecht. Heinrich bemerkt sie nicht. Alle sind willkommen bewegungslos, bis Mathias die ersten Worte spricht. Während dieser ersten Worte gehen Heinrich und sein Sekundant unbemerkt ab.)

(A steep bank on the Rhine. The duel has just ended. Ruprecht lies wounded, unconscious, still grasping his sword. Matthias bends over him in grave concern. At a distance Heinrich and his Second are silhouetted figures draped in cloaks. At the opposite side to them is Renata, half concealed, straining forward, her eyes fixed on the prostrate form of Ruprecht. She pays no attention to Heinrich. There is no sign of movement until Matthias starts to speak, and then Heinrich and his Second unobtrusively quit the scene.)

ACT V

(Kloster. Ein steinernes Gewölbe, weit und düster. Eine grosse Thür, die nach aussen führt. Wenn sie geöffnet wird, fällt durch sie helles Tageslicht herein und eine steinerne Treppe wird sichtbar, die nach oben ins Freie mündet. Ausser der grossen Thür zwei kleinere: eine, aus der heraustreten die Äbtissin und die Nonnen; die zweite Thür den Inquisitor. Auf einer Erhöhung unter der gewölbten Decke des Raumes eine steinerne Galerie. Auf dem Boden des Gewölbes liegt Renata im grauen Gewande der Novize, das Gesicht gegen den Boden gekehrt, die Arme in Kreuzesform ausgebreitet.)

(A convent. A spacious and gloomy undercroft with stone arches and a door leading to the outside. When the door opens, daylight floods in and one can see a flight of stone steps leading up to ground level. There are two smaller doors. From the one will enter the abbess and members of the sisterhood, through the other will come the Inquisitor. At a raised level, yet below the arches, there is a stone gallery. On the floor of the undercroft Renata is discovered. She wears the grey habit of a novice. She is prostrate, with arms outstretched, in the form of a cross.)

VORHANG Durch die Klostertüre tritt die Äbtissin ein und nähert sich Renata; sie berührt sie. Renata steht auf, kniet vor der Äbtissin nieder und bleibt so die ganze Zeit mit gebeugtem Haupte.

CURTAIN The Abbess enters from the convent door, goes over to Renata and touches her, Renata rises, and kneels before the Abbess and holds that position for some while, with her head inclined.

(Die Leuchter, die das Gefolge des Inquisitors hereingetragen hat, stürzen um. Die Schwestern prallen zurück. Unterdrückte Aufschreie, aber viel lauter als das vorhergehende Mal.)
 A Male Choir off stage laughs mockingly and the knocking on the wall is heard again. The candelabras, which were brought in by the attendants on the Inquisitor, are mysteriously knocked down. The Sisters recoil in alarm, and one or two sharp screams are heard, as before but this time they are less restrained.)

Einer aus dem Gefolge stürzt zur grossen Tür, reiss sie auf, ruft um Hilfe. Ein heller Sonnenstrahl bricht durch die geöffnete Tür in das tiefe Gewölbe. Die Wache läuft herein und drängt die Frauen zurück.
 One of the attendants rushes to the great door and, flinging it wide, shouts for help. A dazzling sunbeam strikes through the opening into the undercroft. Guards burst in and thrust back the women.
